

February 5, 1975

PRESIDENT: Senator Duis, are you ready to close the debate by way of reply?

SENATOR DUIS: Yes, Mr. President. I think, probably, as far as Class IV and V schools are, they are getting into our problems of Class III and VI. We've tried to stay out of those to a certain extent except me. I get into them as with Senator Syas quite frequently and I am sure he will be on his feet in just a moment, if I allow him to and I am going to stop that now by saying, Senator Syas, you are certainly welcome to get right into this. Now what I am trying to tell you is this. Probably the superintendent and the administrator have more difficulty than the teachers do. The administrators and the superintendents of our schools are responsible for the discipline of the teachers. They are the ones that are going to have to probably bring action for the dismissal of teachers and such as that and the teachers will be guaranteed a place because of this particular piece of legislation. Now what is to stop the teachers from having a beef against the superintendent and influencing the board to get rid of him just because he has disciplined them. I think, sincerely, that if one should have the guarantee, all should have the guarantee because, if you will recall in management and employees if you have ever been with it, management, as a general rule, has the guarantee in private business because they rule themselves. In this particular instance, administrators and superintendents do not rule the business. It's the Board of Education, so, consequently, when they have an appearance that they must make because of some action that they've taken in order to create a situation that's intolerable--tolerable why they will find that they have the same problems as the teachers and, therefore, I think they are entitled to the same protection.
